TOKYO 2020 OLYMPIC TENNIS EVENT

Tournament Preview

Tennis is featuring at the Summer Olympic Games for the 16th time as a full-medal sport. The sport was part of the inaugural Summer Olympics in 1896 and remained on the programme until 1924. It returned as a full-medal sport at Seoul 1988 (after being played as a demonstration event in both 1968 and 1984). Since then, the men's and women's singles and men's and women's doubles have been played at every Olympic Tennis Event, with the mixed doubles returning at London 2012.

Great Britain's Charlotte Cooper became the first individual woman to win a gold medal in any Olympic sport when she won the women's tennis singles at Paris 1900.

The Olympic Tennis Event is taking place on outdoor hard courts for the 7th time. The Centre Court at the Ariake Tennis Park has a retractable roof – marking the 2nd time since tennis returned to the Olympics in 1988 that matches can be played indoors. Two matches were played under a roof at London 2012, when the event was held at Wimbledon.

The 2020 Summer Olympics were postponed by one year due to the Covid-19 pandemic. The Olympic Tennis Event was originally due to take place from 25 July to 2 August 2020.

DJOKOVIC AND BARTY AIM TO CONTINUE MOMENTUM

Novak Djokovic and Ashleigh Barty are both bidding to add an Olympic gold medal to the Wimbledon singles titles the pair won earlier in July.

Djokovic is making his 4th appearance at the Olympics, with his best result coming at Beijing 2008, when he defeated James Blake to win the bronze medal in the men's singles. He enters an Olympic Games as the world No. 1 for the 2nd time, having also arrived at Rio 2016 as the No. 1-ranked player.

Barty is making her Olympic debut this year and is bidding to become the first Australian woman to win a gold medal at the Olympic Tennis Event. Victory for Barty would be Australia's 2nd gold medal in tennis – after Todd Woodbridge and Mark Woodforde won men's doubles gold at Atlanta 1996.

THE GOLDEN SLAM

Having also won the men's singles titles at the Australian Open and Roland Garros, Djokovic is bidding to become the 2nd player in history to win the 'Golden Slam' – comprising the singles titles at all 4 Grand Slam events and the Olympic gold medal in singles in the same year. Steffi Graf is the only player to have achieved the feat, having won the gold medal at Seoul 1988 and all 4 Grand Slam singles titles the same year.

Djokovic is also bidding to become the 5th player to win all 4 Grand Slam singles titles and an Olympic gold medal in singles during his career (ie not necessarily during a calendar year) – after Graf, Andre Agassi, Rafael Nadal and Serena Williams.

Three doubles teams have also won the 'career Golden Slam' – Todd Woodbridge/Mark Woodforde and Bob Bryan/Mike Bryan in men's doubles, and Serena Williams/Venus Williams in women's doubles.

Pierre-Hugues Herbert/Nicolas Mahut are the only doubles team competing at Tokyo 2020 who could win a 'career Golden Slam' in doubles – the French pair have won 5 Grand Slam men's doubles titles together, including at Roland Garros this year.

WORLD NO. 1s AT THE OLYMPICS

Djokovic would become the first male world No. 1 player to win an Olympic gold medal since tennis returned to the Olympics in 1988. The highest-ranked male players to have won gold since then are No. 2 Nadal at Beijing 2008 and No. 2 Andy Murray at Rio 2016.

Barty would become the 3rd No. 1-ranked player to win the women's singles gold medal at the Olympics – after Graf at Seoul 1988 and Justine Henin at Athens 2004.

At Rio 2016, the top-seeded player/team lost in the 1st round in 4 of the 5 singles and doubles events. Serena Williams, who was No. 1 seed in the women's singles, was the only top seed to progress beyond the 1st round – she reached the 3rd round before falling to Elina Svitolina.

OSAKA AIMS FOR TOKYO TRIUMPH

Four-time Grand Slam champion Naomi Osaka leads the Japanese players aiming to win gold on home soil at the Olympic Tennis Event this year.

Since tennis' return to the Olympics in 1988, just 3 players have won singles gold on home soil – Andre Agassi and Lindsay Davenport, who both won gold at Atlanta 1996, and Murray, who won his first Olympic gold at London 2012.

JAPANESE CONTENDERS

At Rio 2016, Kei Nishikori became the first Japanese player to win a medal at the Olympic Tennis Event since tennis returned to the Games in 1988 – he fell to Murray in the men's singles semifinals before defeating Nadal in the bronze medal match. Nishikori is one of 4 Japanese men competing at the Olympic Tennis Event this year.

Should Osaka, Nishikori or any of the other Japanese players win the title here, it would be the first time in history that Japan has won a gold medal at the Olympic Tennis Event.

MURRAY DEFENDS

Murray became the first player to successfully defend an Olympic singles title by winning gold at Rio 2016, where he defeated Argentina's Juan Martin del Potro in the final. He had previously won the men's singles title at London 2012, defeating Switzerland's Roger Federer in the gold medal match. Murray also won the silver medal in mixed doubles at London 2012 – he and Laura Robson fell to Belarus' Victoria Azarenka/Max Mirnyi in the final.

The Rio 2016 women's singles gold medallist, Monica Puig, is not competing at Tokyo 2020, but 2 other gold medallists from Rio will compete here this year – Elena Vesnina (who won the women's doubles gold medal alongside Ekaterina Makarova at Rio 2016) will compete in women's singles and women's doubles, alongside Veronika Kudermetova, here; and Bethanie Mattek-Sands (who won the mixed doubles gold medal alongside Jack Sock at Rio 2016) will compete in women's doubles alongside Jessica Pegula here.

MOST OLYMPIC MEDALS IN TENNIS

Murray is bidding to become the 4th man – and the first since tennis returned to the Olympics at Seoul 1988 – to win 4 Olympic medals in tennis. As well as defending his men's singles title, Murray will compete in men's doubles here alongside Joe Salisbury.
