

Title: JCS proposal revised.

Source: JCS committee

Author: Prof. Kohji Shibano, chairman of JCS committee

Dear Ms. Moore,

The final draft of JIS X0213 has been established, and is now printing. Although JCS committee submitted several characters to UTC last year, and received your response, some technical changes have been made on the proposal since we sent it to you. So JCS committee reports the modification and to update the original proposal for your consideration.

Moreover, JCS committee considers some characters were inappropriately rejected. The attached paper also includes further discussion about those characters. JCS committee wants you to reconsider the possibility of inclusion of all those proposed characters into Unicode/UCS.

Please find attachment for detail.

We would like to appreciate your cooperation.

(a) Use of combining characters

JCS committee has some arguments against your suggestion about use of combining character sequences to represent some of the proposed characters as composite forms. A paper will be submitted soon.

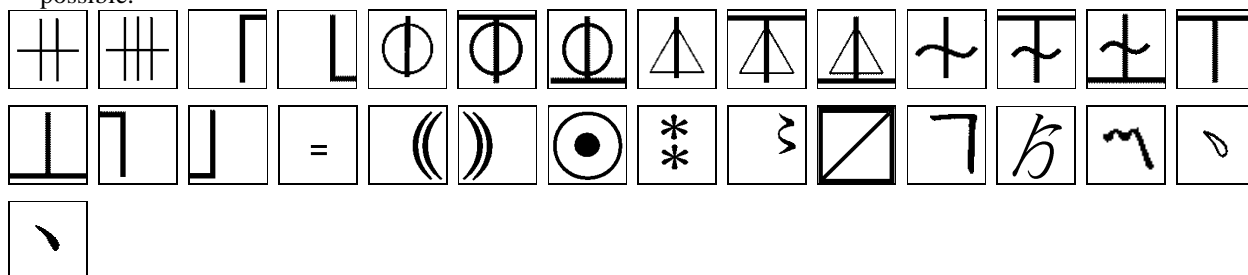

(b) Possibly misunderstood character

In your mail, you mentioned about LATIN SMALL LETTER AE WITH ACUTE, but JCS committee originally proposed LATIN SMALL LETTER AE WITH GRAVE.

Proposed code position by UTC	Glyph	Character name in the X0213 final draft (January 2000)
N/A		LATIN SMALL LETTER AE WITH GRAVE

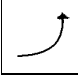

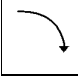

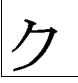

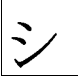

(c) Evidence of usage

You requested to submit evidence of usage for some characters. We are now preparing the requested document for the following characters with some explanation in English. This document will be sent to you as soon as possible.

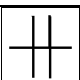

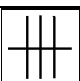

(d) Characters whose name was changed

JCS committee decided to change some character names. The following table lists all those characters. In the previous mail, you wrote that you accepted some of characters listed here as is, but we want you to use new names but old ones.
